Halton Healthcare Services Launches New Talent Network

Halton Healthcare Services (HHS) has just launched their new re-designed Career Opportunities section and Talent Network on their website as they continue to position themselves as a "workplace of choice" and ensure success in employee recruitment and retention.

Partnering with CareerBuilder to offer a customized online system, known as the Talent Network, HHS can reach healthcare job seekers across the nation. The Talent Network uses an advanced algorithm leveraging CareerBuilder's proprietary reach to help candidates find their ideal healthcare jobs without having to go through the lengthy job search process. Members of the Talent Network are matched to healthcare positions that meet their interests and receive a notification when these positions become available.

"This targeted service is designed to source relevant healthcare professionals for current vacancies within HHS, as well as assist us in building a robust pool of talent for the future," says Elaine Do Rosario, Manager, Talent Solutions at HHS. "The Talent Network will source opportunities, advertise them, and put together a shortlist of relevant and interested job seekers which the Recruitment Team can draw from during the recruitment process. This will provide HHS with another avenue to attract top talent to our organization and drive our Recruitment brand in the external market."

HHS anticipates hundreds of members will join the Talent Network over the next few months, especially as the opening of the New Oakville Hospital draws near in December 2015. With the potential for over 1000 new jobs being created after the new hospital opens, the Talent Network will be a major tool for HHS to source the right talent for the right role at the right time.

“We are excited about the re-introduction of the Talent Network, and we’re pleased to have received such a positive response from our candidates who started utilizing the platform,” explained Do Rosario. “What our candidates love most about the Talent Network is that it brings the jobs straight to their inboxes. Being in the healthcare field is challenging, and our candidates often don’t have the time to search through hundreds of job listings every day—that’s when they rely on the Talent Network to do the search for them.”

For HHS, staffing is not just about resume-matching technologies and job boards, it’s about people. HHS prides itself on creating quality partnerships which aims at keeping their employees for many years to come.

“If you are passionate about what you do, motivated by improving the health of the community, and as committed to excellence, quality and patient safety as we are, we'd like to hear from you,” added Do Rosario. “We offer a competitive compensation package, including a comprehensive benefits plan, orientation and training, and learning and development opportunities.”

Any healthcare professionals interested in joining the HHS Talent Network can do so by clicking the “Join Our Talent Network” link under the Career Opportunities page of the HHS website at www.haltonhealthcare.com .
